

Full legal name

Your full legal name is the name recorded on your document that proves identity. If the name on your proof of identity is different than your current name, you must show DMV additional proof of identity or legal name change documents proving your current name.

Examples of legal name change:

Government-issued marriage certificate/license, divorce decree, judgment of dissolution or annulment of marriage or domestic partnership, Oregon certificate of registered domestic partnership, adoption decree, or a court order.

Social Security Number

If you have been assigned a Social Security number, you must provide it in order to be issued a driver license, permit or ID card. If you don't have a Social Security number, when you apply for your driver license, permit or ID card you will be asked to sign an electronic statement certifying that you haven't been assigned a Social Security number.

Don't use false ID documents

All documents that prove full legal name, identity and date of birth must be original or certified copies from the issuing agency. DMV has the discretion to require additional evidence of full legal name, Social Security number, identity and date of birth. It is a crime to present altered or forged documents or to make a false statement to DMV when applying for a driver license, permit or ID card, and is punishable by a fine and up to a year in prison (ORS: 25.785, 807.530, 809.310).

Frequent questions

I previously had an Oregon driver license, but it has been expired for over two years. Am I able to renew it?

No. If your previous Oregon license has been expired for over two years, you will need to apply for an original Oregon driver license. You will need to take all required tests, and pay original issuance fees. DMV will use your previous driver license number.

I want to get a Real ID driver license to use to board flights within the U.S. Are the requirements different?

Yes. To qualify for a Real ID driver license, permit or ID card you must present proof of lawful status, as well as other documents. Visit www.Oregon.Gov/RealID for full requirements.
